

Full Time Post-Doctoral Fellowship

The University of Washington Division of Public Behavioral Health and Justice Policy invites applications for a one-year implementation science-focused post-doctoral fellowship.

This fellowship provides training for individuals who are interested in exploring and applying implementation science-related principles and research designs to public health-oriented projects. Specifically, the post-doctoral trainee will work on a collaborative state-academic project implementing the Triple P Positive Parenting Program in various locations in Washington State. The fellow will work implementing the intervention with public health, primary care, mental health, and other agencies that provide services to children and families. Research opportunities include facilitating a quasi-experimental study with primary care clinics and conducting social network analyses.

The minimum degree required is the Ph.D. or foreign equivalent. Individuals with doctorates from a range of social and behavioral disciplines are encouraged to apply, including psychology, public health, social work, sociology, psychiatry, and epidemiology.

For further information regarding this fellowship, please contact Suzanne Kerns, Ph.D. (sekerns@uw.edu; 206.685.2766).

The position will start September 1, 2015 and end on August 31, 2016 (October start-dates can be considered). The position may be renewed annually to a maximum of six years, depending on funding.

All University of Washington faculty engage in teaching, research and service. University of Washington is an affirmative action and equal opportunity employer. All qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to race, color, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, national origin, age, protected veteran or disabled status, or genetic information.

Interested applicants should send their curriculum vitae, a writing sample, and a brief statement of research interests and goals to Suzanne Kerns, Ph.D. (sekerns@uw.edu).